THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC: TRADE, LOGISTICS, AND FORCE MAJEURE ISSUES

The COVID-19 outbreak is affecting almost all aspects of the supply chain. For some members of the international trade community, the pandemic is an issue of economic uncertainty, if not one of survival. For those facing such issues, their contracts or the law may be sources of relief. Please join the Foreign Trade Association and Andrew D. Kehagiaras, Esq., partner at Roberts & Kehagiaras LLP, as he provides an overview of the doctrine of force majeure and if, when, and how it may apply and affect commercial relations. Register today for this valuable discussion.
